Reviewer A:

Dear Editor,

I have completed the initial check and review of the paper entitled "THE EFFECT OF SUPPLY CHAIN AGILITY IN MEDIATION OF ABSORPTIVE CAPACITY AND COMPETITIVE ADVANTAGE (CASE STUDY: MODERN CAFE AND RESTAURANT)".

I have some comments to improve the quality of paper based on its methodology, and organization of the text. During my review, I am convinced that this paper is an original research paper and fits the requirement of the journal. However, I would like to make these suggestions to contribute to the success of your journal if the paper is checked based on its approach, structure, and organization of the text.

- IJRBS uses ILRIC methodology for research papers (Abstract, Introduction, Literature Review, Methodology, Implications, and Conclusions).
- Title: The title reflects the article
- Abstract: Abstract fits the journal methodology and reflects the content of the article including the main research question, methodology, and contribution including the research objective, method, model or analysis, primary findings, and the underlined conclusion in the study.
- Introduction: Introduction is not a literature background. It should be improved. Authors should be defining the problem, importance of the topic, subject matter of the study referring to the most recent bibliography, research gap, data, methodology, and organization of the text in the last paragraph.
- Literature Review: A literature review is necessary for empirical studies. You should examine the theoretical background and empirical studies, and the hypothesis should be linked to studies for empirical studies. Add several up-to-date papers from SCOPUS, and SSCI.
- Research and Methodology: We suggest you provide more information about data, sample, method, model, components, variables, hypothesis testing, and so on.
